What would you do?

Aims

- To understand what morals are.
- To explore moral dilemmas and the choices we make.

What Are Morals?

If something is moral, it is considered right or good.

If you often make choices that are good, you can be known as a moral person, or as someone who has strong morals.

If something is immoral, it is considered wrong or bad.

Moral Compass

If you are lost, a compass can help you decide which way to go.

Just like in life, sometimes you might not know what to do about something. Your ability to know what is right or wrong is known as a moral compass. It can help you decide what to do for the best.

What is a Moral Dilemma?

Sometimes it is easy to know what the right thing to do is.

But sometimes, it's not so clear.

When it is tricky to know what the right thing to do is, we call that a moral dilemma.

You see your friend cheating in a maths test.
What would you do?

Tell the teacher – it is wrong to cheat.

Tell your friend they shouldn't cheat and make them promise not to cheat again.

High-five your friend – they will have a great score!

You are playing football in the house and break your mum's favourite vase. She thinks your brother or sister did it. What would you do?

Tell the truth – its not fair for anyone else to get the blame.

Tell your Mum it was no one's fault – a gust of wind knocked the vase over.

Let your Mum think your brother or sister did it – they're always blaming you for things.

You're given too much change in a shop and only realise as you're leaving.
What would you do?

Give the extra money
to charity.

Go back and tell the shop assistant what has happened.

Go and spend the extra money on something nice for yourself.

Your friend has bought a new top – but you think it's awful.
Do you keep quiet or tell them what you think?

Tell them what you think – it is wrong to lie and it looks horrible.

Say nothing – they're happy and they don't need to know what you think.

Tell your friend it looks amazing and you wish you had one!

Why Is It Important to Make Moral Choices?

How has your moral compass helped you today?

Making moral choices means doing the right thing, even if you don't want to.

Today you have used your moral compasses to help you decide what the right thing to do is in different situations.

Remember to always listen to your moral compass.

Time to Think

Do what is right,
not what is easy.
